TO PREVENT VENSEL FROM DRAWING PAY

Humane Society Makes Request of County and City Auditors to Hold Up Salary Wednesday—No Longer Recognizes Him as Its Agent

That the humane society no longer recognizes J. W. Vensel as its agent, despite the fact that its election of W. T. Knight to that position has not yet been approved by Probate Judge Ashman and Acting Mayor Riley, was indicated Friday morning, when steps were taken to prevent Vensel, who is still holding down the job in an unconcerned manner, from drawing his monthly pay from the city and county.

Mrs. W. W. Cantwell, president of the society, called up the county auditor's office by phone and requested that Officer Vensel's pay check be held up by the commissioners. Auditor Mowrey was out of the city so the matter had not been brought to his attention Friday night. Mrs. Cantwell also called up City Auditor E. O. Evans and made a similar request of him, stating that as Vensel had been discharged by the society on March 1, it was desired that he no longer draw pay. Later in the morning, J. C. Fisher representing the society, called upon Auditor Evans and discussed the matter with him.

Payday Last of Month

The society learned that Vensel draws his pay from both the city and county treasuries during the last week of each month and as it is expected that mandamus action, designed to compel the approval of Knight's appointment will be taken up by the court of appeals at Newark next week the decision will decide whether or not Vensel will continue to draw salary.

May Enjoin Payment

Should no decision be reached before Vensel's next pay day, it is likely that the society will seek to enjoin the city and county authorities from paying him.

Amputation of Thumb Is Necessary

Harley Coggins of New Castle who sustained a badly mangled thumb last Sunday when his fingers became caught in the cogs of a feed cutter, will be brought to the City hospital today and a portion of the thumb will be amputated, the operation being made necessary by the fact that blood-poisoning has developed from the injury.

Mr. Coggins will be accompanied to Coshocton by his physician Dr. J. W. Dillon and the operation will be performed by Dr. Pomerene, assisted by Dr. Dillon.

Hold Spelling Bee in Roscoe

The old fashioned spelling bee held at the Roscoe town hall last evening by the Roscoe W. C. T. U. was a success in every way. Prof. J. E. Lyons was "master of ceremonies" and the words that he pronounced were spelled readily by the members of the two sides chosen. Miss Mona Dobson being the last one of the company to go down. Mrs. Louise Fortune and Mrs. Karr Daugherty were next to the last to go down. After the spelling bee there was a social hour and a mysterious lunch was served the menu consisting of:

- Leap year cereal, pop corn
 - A noise and the doctor's charge, coffee
 - Everlasting delight, chewing gum
 - Fourth of July adjuncts, crackers
 - A musical nut, doughnut
 - Chips off the old block, tooth picks
 - Adams ale, water
 - Fruit of the vine, pickles
 - What will be done with the newspaper, bread
- In addition to the social success of the occasion the sum of $9.70 was realized from the evening's entertainment.

Only Four Nays

CAST AGAINST LIQUOR LICENSE BILL IN SENATE FRIDAY.

Columbus, O., March 7.—The Greenlund liquor bill was passed by the senate today by a vote of 28 to 4. Only one amendment, that of reducing the salaries of members of the state licensing board from $6000 to $5000 a year was adopted.

Would Also Tax Bachelor Maids

Boston, March 7.—A tax on bachelor maids as well as on bachelors was advocated before the committee on taxation yesterday by Mrs. Frank W. Page, who described herself as an "old school m'arn."

"Women as well as men," she said, "enjoy freedom of life, and it is worth $5 a year to some of them to remain teaching school or working in the stores."

Will Sell Walnut St. Building

An effort will be made by the board of education to sell the old Walnut street school building March 25.

It is hoped that work of razing the building can be started no later than April 1 so that the ground can be broken for the new central building soon afterward and little time lost to the pupils when the next term starts.

May Operate on Mrs. West

There is no improvement in the condition of Mrs. William West who was removed Tuesday to the City hospital suffering from an attack of appendicitis. Drs. Marshall and Carr held a consultation Friday and it is thought that the woman will have to be operated upon as soon as she recovers sufficiently.

Sells Interest in Store to Son

Virgil Vin-el has purchased the interest owned by his father A. R. Vinsel in the Vinsel & Lapp store in Willis Creek. A. R. Vinsel will leave March 15 to spend the remainder of the winter in Florida and his son will assume his place in the store and as a member of the firm.

THE WEATHER
FOR OHIO—Unsettled with rain or snow Saturday; Sunday rising temperature.

WHAT GREENLUND BILL PROVIDES

As passed by the senate, the bill provides for the appointment by the governor of three state license commissioners who are to receive not more than $500 in salary. The state license commissioners in turn are empowered to name two county commissioners for each county, the salaries of the county license commissioners not to exceed $5000. The county commissioners grant liquor licenses. Licensees pay license fee of $1900 and a registration fee of $100. The last named fee is designed to sustain the cost of the license system.

Have Arbitrary Powers
The county license commissioners have arbitrary power to grant licenses excepting the persons now in the business and persons of "good moral character" are to be preferred. A person refused a license could appeal to the state commission. Persons objecting to a license granted can appeal to the state board.

Licensed saloon men would have their license suspended for one violation of liquor law and revoked for two violations. However when tried for second violation, they would be entitled to a jury trial.

Those voting against the bill were Senators M. E. Beman of Gallia county, C. T. Gallagher of Madison county and John L. McDermott, Trumbull county. Senator L. B. Trumbull of Cincinnati was absent on the final roll call.

Attends Banquet Honoring Wilson

George A. Hay returned from Washington, D. C. Friday where he went to attend the inauguration ceremonies and a banquet given by the class of 79 of Princeton University, honoring President Woodrow Wilson.

Classmate of Wilson
Mr. Hay was a classmate of the new president and together with forty other members of the class of 79 enjoyed the banquet given Tuesday evening at the Shoreham hotel. Covers were laid for sixty, forty being members of the class and the remainder of the number sons of members.

All Give Toasts
Mr. Hay says that, while the banquet was thoroughly enjoyed by all, President Wilson himself was probably the most enthusiastic member of the company. Each one of the forty members of the class present responded with a brief toast and the minds of all were busy with reminiscences of thirty-four years ago.

Asks That Court Annul Common Law Marriage

The unique problem of severing the bonds of an alleged common law marriage was put up to Judge Ashman of probate court Friday by Jacob (Seidekel) Huffman in a suit filed against Leba (Seidekel) Huffman.

Driven Out With Club
The plaintiff, well known local junk dealer, states in his petition, that he and the defendant left their native land (Russia) he coming to America and she stopping in England. Later, she joined him in New York, where they lived together for a time. However, he alleged that her conduct became so abusive that he left her, coming to Coshocton. In 1912 the defendant again joined him in Coshocton, where they lived together for a period of two months. Here, he claims, she again became abusive, on one occasion driving him from home with a club.

Gets Jewish Divorce
After drawing up papers of separation, the plaintiff states that he was granted a Jewish divorce from the defendant by Rabbi Gitelson of Cleveland. The couple have two children, aged 10 and 7 years, respectively. Huffman asks that if the court finds there has been a legal marriage, he be granted a divorce decree. He is represented by Attorney George D. Klein.

Farmers Testify in Big Harvester Suit

Omaha, Neb., March 7.—Two farmers were called to testify for the defense in the suit of the government against the International Harvester Company.

The government has contended harvesting implements composed half of the machinery required by a farmer. These two men, both well to do, gave figures to show harvesting machinery represented only three-tenths of the value of their farm machinery.

George Swanson, of Crawford, Neb., gave testimony about the high cost of living. He said he had been receiving for the last two years about double the price of ten years ago for what he sold, while prices for what he bought, including machinery had advanced insignificantly, and in many instances had declined.

Hugh McCarger created a stir when he declared he was opposed to the trust. "To tell the truth," he testified, "I tried to beat the trust and stuck to the independent lines as long as any were left."

Corpses in Morgue Used as Targets

St. Louis, Mo., March 7.—Dr. H. G. W. Reinhardt, coroner's physician at Chicago, testified by deposition in the Circuit Court here today that corpses in the county morgue at Chicago are used as shooting targets to obtain evidence for expert witnesses.

Dr. Reinhardt gave this testimony in the trial of the suit against an accident insurance company which was brought by the widow of Ira G. Raven, late president of the Monon railroad. The accident company refused to pay the policy on his life, claiming that Raven had committed suicide. Dr. Reinhardt testified that a post mortem examination of Raven's body convinced him that the shot which ended his life was fired at "contact range."

This conclusion, he said was based on experiments conducted by himself and others on bodies in the county morgue.

Raven carried insurance in ten accident companies for a total of $120,000. Six companies companies compromised on a basis of 50 per cent, and Mrs. Raven received $50,000 from them. Four of the companies would not settle.

Residence Is Damaged by Flames

A fire, originating from an overheated stove, damaged an unoccupied frame residence on Ninth Street belonging to Mrs. Charles Wolfe to the extent of about $200. Mrs. Wolfe is now located in Oregon.

A large hole was burned in the kitchen floor and the walls of the room were badly damaged. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hook had intended moving into the house and Friday morning Mrs. Hook went to the residence and lighted the gas range, which had been left in the kitchen.

About one o'clock the fire was discovered by a neighbor and the department called.

The flames were beginning to get a good start when the firemen arrived and it was only by quick work that the blaze was extinguished.

Blind Baggage to County Jail
Dan Feniman, who claims to hail from Dayton was arrested Friday morning by Detective Doney on the charge of train riding. He pleaded guilty when arraigned before Squire Wimmer and was fined the usual $2.80.

Face Cut by Cow's Horn

John Binning of Bowman Narrowly Escapes Losing Eye in Odd Mishap Friday

While in the act of placing a halter on a cow Friday morning, John Binning, aged 45, was struck just below the left eye by one of the animal's horns and an ugly wound inflicted.

The accident occurred at Binning's home one mile south of Bowman.

The flesh beneath the eye was cut to the bone and his face badly bruised.

Blood flowed freely from the eye and it was first thought that the optic had been struck. However, an examination showed that the horn had struck about one inch below the eye.

First Hair Cut in Sixteen Years

Orlando, Fla., March 7.—Seated in a band stand in the public square, in the presence of scores of the townsfolk assembled for the event, Code Hill, an aged resident of Orlando, yesterday had his first hair cut in sixteen years.

During the 1896 campaign, Hill made a pledge to allow his locks to grow untrimmed until a Democrat became President of the United States.

Physician Consulted
The cow is not vicious but never having had a halter on, became nervous and as Mr. Binning was leaning forward, the animal tossed her head in such a manner that the horn struck him forcibly.

Dr. Lear was consulted and gave directions as to how the wound should be dressed. Friday night Binning was reported to be suffering no bad effects from the accident and it is not thought that the eye will be affected from the injury.

Fears Hubby and Asks for His Arrest

Larkin Sprague was arrested Friday evening by Sheriff George Phiarson on a peace warrant sworn out by Mrs. Emma Sprague, his wife.

He was lodged in the county jail and will be given a hearing before Squire Abbott soon.

Sprague it will be remembered recently pleaded guilty to the charge of assaulting Ross Henry with a shot gun. Henry was boarding at the Sprague home and Sprague was under the impression that the boarder was becoming too friendly with Mrs. Sprague.

Since that time Mrs. Sprague asserts that she has reason to fear her husband.

An amendment adopted was introduced by Senator J. I. Hudson of Scioto county, reducing the maximum salary for county licensing commissioners from $5,000 to $2,500 was reconsidered and left at $5,000.

An amendment by Senator Hudson, reducing the annual registration fee from $100, to $50 was defeated 25 to 12. The senate defeated by 21 to 12 an amendment proposed by Senator C. J. Howard, the minority leader, to prevent the location of saloons within 300 feet of a school. Howard and Senator William Green made forceful pleas for the amendment.

The house today killed four measures, three of which the senate had passed almost unanimously. Those killed after the senate had passed them were:

The Mooney resolution, calling for a legislative probe into the alleged fire insurance trust in Ohio, with authority to investigate rates and methods of business.

The Hillenkamp resolution for "free speech and a free press," and asking congress to investigate alleged interference of both on the part of courts.

The Bernstein constitutional amendment resolution providing the short ballot for state offices and subdividing legislative and senatorial districts that have more than one representative or senator. This passed the senate 30 to 2.

After killing the short ballot, 59 to 37, Representative William Behne of Williams county moved that the roll call be expunged from the records, but he was ruled out of order.

The fourth measure killed was the Nye resolution, providing a constitutional amendment for the recall of judicial decisions. Nye is a Bull Moose, and the proposition had the backing of the Bull Moose state organization. It was killed, 64 to 31, only nine Democrats supporting it.

The Mooney resolution was killed 48 to 46, and the Hillenkamp resolution by a viva voce vote.

Representatives Victor Vonderheide of Montgomery, J. F. Kramer of Richland and I. F. Snyder led the fight against the recall of judicial decisions.

Services in The Pastime

The Presbyterian congregation will again occupy The Pastime Theatre for the Sunday night service this week in pursuance of a novel religious campaign inaugurated by the pastor, Rev. George Brewer.

As the theatre was packed last Sunday it may be that another speaker will be secured for overflow services in the church.

Much comment has been aroused by the novel campaign, newspapers over the state having spoken of the plan with favor.

Several attending the service Sunday night were heard to say that although they had not entered a church for years, they were more than pleased and were anticipating attending each service of the series during the coming weeks.

To Regulate Private Banks.

Columbus O., March 7.—Any sort of an institution, except national banks, doing any sort of banking business in the state, whether it be conducted by a firm, person or corporation, must be subjected in operation to the rules of the state banking department, if a bill introduced by Senator Zmunt of Cuyahoga county becomes a law. Thus all private banking institutions will be governed by state laws and subject to inspection. The bill prohibits any person connected with the state banking department from borrowing from institutions which come under his supervision.

Perry's Flagship Raised.

Erie, Pa. March 7.—Working in one of the worst blizzards of the winter, a local contractor and his gang raised the Niagara, the ship which turned defeat into victory for Oliver Hazard Perry in the battle of Lake Erie, Sept. 10, 1813. Within five days it is expected that the battered craft will be raised and propelled to the shore on pontoons. From there she will be towed to a local shipbuilding yard, where she will be overhauled preparatory to her last cruise, along the Great Lakes ports from Erie to Duluth, during the Perry centennial celebration next summer.

Disperse Rioters With Locomotive.

Trenton, N. J. March 7.—Rioting, which for a time threatened serious consequences followed an attempt of striking workmen on the Pennsylvania railroad to put a stop to all work at the yards in Morrisville, Pa. Several hundred strikers marched to the yards and after argument tried to force those at work to quit. The strikers were finally dispersed by a locomotive which was run up and down the tracks pouncing water upon the strikers.

Sermon to Young People

Eighteen conversions were in part the result of the meeting held at Grace church last evening. The church was well filled, a large proportion of the congregation being young people who had come to the service in response to a special invitation.

Dr. LaMance discussed the great causes that rule the lives of men in his discourse on the question "Is There Not a Cause?" He said Jesus is the greatest cause. Every successful cause requires courage to propagate it. He drew many helpful illustrations which assisted in making his sermon plain. In conclusion he urged upon the young people specially the necessity of a courageous character in living the Christian life. He said that the best people on earth are in the churches and that a young man or woman who has the Christian courage and strength to live uprightly is equipped for life in a way that those without the church can not realize.

In response to continued appeals many went to the altar and even after Dr. LaMance had ceased to press the invitation others arose from their places in the audience and came—the victory at one time being so plainly evident that the audience broke into applause.

There will be no service tonight but the Sunday services will be especially important. In the evening Dr. LaMance will preach on "Hell."

BOWLING

As an indoor sport requiring unusual physical exertion bowling has come to take high rank. It is a clean sport as yet, the taint of professionalism rarely, if ever attaching to it.

Interurban match games in bowling are still played as baseball was of yore when the team representing a certain city actually represented it, being composed of local men whose pride in their native city impels them to play for all they are worth.

Only the other evening a team representing Newcomerstown journeyed to this city to play a series of games with a local team. The visitors were a clean, gentlemanly lot who knew the game and played it for the interest they had in it and for the exercise they derived from it.

They were matched against the same kind of a team here. In no case was the breath of one of the ten contestants tainted with liquor nor did an oath fall from the lips of a single one of them during the entire evening.

Not a penny was staked on the outcome of the game, yet the contest from beginning to end was filled with wholesome excitement both for the players and for the spectators. It was a typical exhibition of clean, amateur sport of the best kind.

In contests of this nature it doesn't make much difference after all who wins. Suffice it to say clean sport won and that is the main consideration. There was rivalry, of course, but it was not the feverish, unhealthy kind of rivalry that comes from outright gambling between players and spectators.

Amateur sport of this kind cannot receive too much encouragement. The average business man needs exercise. Open air exercise is, of course, preferable, but out of the question in this climate at least five months out of the year. And of all the indoor forms of recreation bowling is always bound to rank high.

With the number of good alleys to be found in this city it ought to be no trouble at all to organize a city league comprising at least six teams and when ever possible there ought to be series of match games like the one referred to above arranged with teams from surrounding cities.

Home pride and the love of clean sport can be relied on to maintain a healthy interest throughout. There is no need of professionalism and the expenditure of great sums of money. Those things hurt, rather than help the cause of real sport in the end.

WOMEN IN THE INDUSTRIAL WORLD

There is bitter complaint from many sources, especially in the larger industrial centers about the encroachment of women workers into "man's domain."

It is true that there are now several million women engaged in industrial pursuits and, as the complainers declare, they are slowly crowding men out of many vocations where once man ruled supreme. But their reasoning is wrong when they assume that woman's invasion of the industrial world is a recent occurrence.

The gentler sex has ever borne its share of the world's domestic and economic burdens. The trouble with us of this generation which has seen woman supplant man wholly or in part in the schoolroom, the store and factory is that we forget the profound industrial changes which have overtaken us.

Seventy-five years ago our great grandmothers carded the wool, they spun and wove it. They were the tailors for the entire family. "Store clothes" were unheard of, even in the families of the well-to-do. There were no public laundries. Public bakeries were unheard of. Visits to the grocery store were few and far between.

In short, each one was as near a self-sustaining as it could possibly be. We were individualists in the best sense of the word. The competitive era was not at its height and at its best. The era of machinery had not yet dawned. There was work on every farm for a man and his family and the hands were there to do it.

But with the introduction of labor-saving machinery the change came. We may say, in a way, that it came slowly, but as time is measured by history it has truly come with incredible swiftness. It has come so quickly that we have not yet learned to adapt ourselves to it nor to appreciate what it means to us as a nation.

The work that our grandmothers and their mothers once did under the family roof with their own hands is now done by hundreds of different crafts, and by hundreds of thousands of different craftsmen, separated by oceans and continents and thousands of miles of space.

The result today is that there is nothing left for the girls to do in the home, except the most elemental housekeeping. So, gradually and naturally they have gone to the schoolroom, behind the counter and later into factories of many various kinds. A hundred years ago society would have been shocked to have seen women in stores or factories, simply because there was no occasion for them to go there.

No one is shocked today because woman, naturally industrious as man, finds nothing to do in the home by which she can support herself, while out in the great industrial world an uncounted millions of jobs, for most of which she is better fitted than man.

Just to show how little the common herd knew in their childish kicking about the price of meat, Arntz & Co. were the first year to declare a dividend of only 29 percent on a capital of $20,000,000.

A great many Democrats that have been confidently expecting a government job are beginning to realize the sad fact that after all they will have to work for a living.

Having shown its ability to control the weather by giving President Wilson a baby inauguration day, the Weather Bureau should now remember the farmers.

New Jersey has all along been known as the mother of trusts, but of late her children have been the subjects of some really severe discipline.

It is said that the new instructor in law at Yale, Prof. William Howard Taft, comes to that institution very highly recommended.

The Wise Guy says: the woman—or man—is yet to be found who started a scandal and admitted it.

U. B. CHURCH BUYS BIG TRACT IN WARREN CO.

Dayton, O., March 7.—The greatest real estate transaction in farm lands in Ohio for a half century was consummated this afternoon.

The great Shaker estate of over 4,000 acres, in Warren county, was transferred by warranty deed to the United Brethren Church for an orphanage and series of homes.

This is land of marked fertility and the many large buildings erected by the Shakers make the estate an ideal place for its new purposes. The treasurer of the United Brethren Church, L. O. Miller, passed the check which secured the deed. The purchase price was $325,000 of which $50,000 is raised.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS?

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Coshocton Citizen Gives a Valuable Hint.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is where danger often lies. You should realize that these troubles often lead to dropsy, or Bright's disease. An effective remedy for weak or diseased kidneys is Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the experience of a resident of Coshocton.

Mrs. B. E. Becker, 123 S. Eleventh St., Coshocton, Ohio, says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers. My kidneys were weak and I had backaches. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me entire relief."

PEOPLES' FORUM

WAS IT PATRIOTISM?

Editor The Tribune:

The politicians of the political party now in power at Washington, and at the head of the Webb Bill through and made it a law, just on the eve of Wilson taking the chair. Could it have been to save President Wilson from committing himself on this bill as it was, or even if it should have been made stronger? We are not the judges.

This might be true, especially when the bill as it stood was very weak as compared to other bills on this line that had been introduced, and this bill was not fought by the liquor interests at all as compared with other temperance legislation.

We believe that for some time, and till they learn better, a great many people will be deluded and think the bear is killed, and some organizations will claim the credit.

We think the Webb Bill is of every little consequence to the state of Ohio or any other state. The whole responsibility rests upon the officials of the communities, to enforce what little temperance is in the Webb Law. Have these officials administered the temperance laws in the past? If they have not in the past, in what way will the Webb Law compel them in the future? This law simply says liquors shall not be shipped from one state into a community of another state, if it violates that state law.

If liquors are shipped into a community illegally, who is to execute the law? Not the United States officials, for Congress did not attach any penalty whatever to the violation of this law, but the execution of the law is left to the city and state officials. Liquor could be shipped illegally into Coshocton County, were it a dry county, from Pittsburgh as well as from Steubenville, and in the laws were not executed of what benefit would the Webb Bill be to us?

Remember the Webb Law does not say that liquor shall not be shipped into any dry county or state, but says it shall not be shipped into any state in violation of that state's laws. Then Congress says in the Webb Bill that that community of that state enforce its own state law. As a reader of your paper, we credit you for not having deceived the people by making it appear that the Webb Bill would effect a great reform.

If the Christian people and those that adhere to the churches, would simply stand by and carry out the Church Resolutions or Presbyteries, Conferences etc., as officials, we would soon settle the liquor traffic and its alliances. One who was at Washington

John Sorrowful—"How'd'ye do, Anty Drudge? I'm waiting for Mary to hand me out a bite of cold lunch. I never go in the house on wash-day."

Anty Drudge—"Nonsense. Your wife washed with Fels-Naptha Soap today, and it was all done two hours ago. She has a nice hot lunch for you and had time to read and play the piano besides."

There was a woman who made a prayer to be saved from washday with all its care. Then she tried Fels-Naptha Soap. It wasn't exactly washday that she meant, but the hard rubbing, hot, steam-filled kitchens—all the disagreeable part of washday.

Fels-Naptha Soap answers that wish. Soap the clothes, roll and let them soak in cool or lukewarm water for 30 minutes, rub lightly, then rinse.

MORE INTEREST IN ANIMAL THAN HUMAN DISEASE

Chicago, March 7.—President Edmund J. James, of the university of Illinois, speaking at the exercises celebrating the transfer of the college of physicians and surgeons to the state university declared today the state of Illinois is more interested in the ailments of its hogs than in human disease.

"The University of Illinois has been authorized by the Legislature to spend $500,000 for the support of its college of agriculture," said the president. "We are studying the disease of hogs, but not one dollar has the Legislature ever given us for the study of human disease."

New Girls Dormitory for Mt. Union

Alliance, O., March 7.—The trustees of Mt. Union State College have accepted the offer of Mrs. W. C. Elliott, of Canton, who agreed to give $25,000 for the erection of a girls' dormitory provided they raise an additional $25,000 and erect a building to cost not less than $40,000.

H. S. Johns, of Cleveland, and a former student have each subscribed a thousand dollars, leaving the amount to be raised $23,000. The building will accommodate 90 to 100 girls.

TAXICAB DRIVER IS ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

New York, March 7.—You may go home, get another taxicab, go out and kill somebody else," Judge Foster of general sessions court told Leon Gerard, a taxicab driver, acquitted of murder this afternoon. "The jury has given you permission to do so."

"Gentlemen," continued the court, addressing the jury which had just given its verdict, "you seem to think that a drunken chauffeur can run recklessly with his machine through the streets and go unpunished. At least, that is what you say by your verdict."

Gerard was indicted for the murder of Mrs. Mary Dithridge, a cousin of District Attorney Whitman, whom he ran down last April.

Trivial as the incident was in its consequences, it nevertheless cast a deeper pall over the country. The bearing away of the dog settled beyond all doubt that the murderous minded creature was strongly carnivorous, and the name of the lost daughter of Farmer Jones was no longer spoken even in whispers. And deeper and still more deep there settled into the hearts of all mankind a horror, loathing and hatred of this unnatural thing that words were impotent to express. Had he fallen into their hands, they would have become barbarians themselves in the ferocity of their revenge.

CHAPTER VII.

The Face at the Pane.

March, passing down the street, was deep in thought and his face looked as though he were somewhat worried, and in truth he was, for to have a Flying Man, and a woman with whom one is very much in love, upon the mind at one and the same time, and both behaving unsatisfactorily, is trouble enough for any man. Not a word had he heard from Doris since the night he had left her at the door with the words in his ears, "If I really need you I will let you know," and his obstinacy and jealousy had prevented him from communicating with her in any manner as long as his rival remained beneath her roof. He had not expected that she would really need him in the physical sense, of course, yet one may need another in many different ways, and it piqued him that she, knowing how eager he would be to come, had not made some excuse for needing him that he might go and see her, or at least talk with her over the phone. Perhaps she had been in love with Tolliver all along. He had half suspected at times that she was, and now that she was helping to nurse him, was seeing him many times daily, was reading to him and being read to by him and having long and confidential talks with him under propitious circumstances, it would not be at all startling if the tender passion bud were swiftly blooming into full flower. Confound Tolliver, anyway. Was he going to stay there forever? Why didn't he send for his trunk and be done with it? He ought to be ashamed of himself for his insolent abuse of common hospitality.

Head down and frowning, he ran abruptly into a man at a corner and with a muttered apology looked up. Clay, a half smile on his handsome face, was regarding him with small attempt to conceal his amusement. "This is a poor time for me to go about with his head down in that fashion when everybody else has got a crack in his neck from looking up. You had best take care. The Flying Man will get you if you don't watch out," he said in his even and rather musical voice. Quickly Allen swept him with his eyes. He had never appeared in better health, stronger or better satisfied with things in general. March thrust out his hand and Clay taking it with a mechanical motion released it instantly.

"Glad to see you out again," exclaimed the former fervently. Once again an amused smile flitted about the other's lips. "Thanks," he returned drily. "You are looking very well indeed," Tolliver bowed.

"It would be strange if I did not after the nursing and treatment I received. Take my word for it, man. If you ever become injured prevail upon Miss Fulton to look after you. If she will do so you will not have suffered in vain." The faint look of displeasure that ran across March's face did not escape the convalescent one's eyes, and again he batted him out of pure enjoyment.

"Nothing will put a sick man on his feet so quickly as to have an interested and interesting woman ministering to him. Do you know I almost regretted that I was not laid up before they wanted me to. Didn't want even to appear to be taking advantage of their kindness, you see."

Although the speaker's manner was open enough, there was nevertheless a subtle maliciousness in his tones that March instantly detected and inwardly resented. "Let's see—ten days," he returned reflectively. "That is a pretty long while to be laid up with a cracked rib, isn't it?" Tolliver agreed with him at once.

"I should imagine so. But you see I have been away from there for the last four days—was there less than a week? What? Is it possible that you did not know?" He opened his eyes in a look of mock surprise at the other's evident lack of information. March felt like a fool.

"No, I knew nothing about it," he was forced to admit. "I have been very busy with my own affairs. But I must be on my way. See you again, Tolliver."

not known it? He became angrier than ever. True, he had told Doris that he would leave the field to her and Clay as long as the latter remained in their house as her patient, but how in the name of common sense was he to know when the patient left unless he received word? If Doris and himself had been short time acquaintances things would have been different and he would not have expected her to let him know, but as it was they had known each other for years, had been the best of friends during all that time and in a way confidants long before he had begun to make love to her. Therefore, eliminating the love element, she might at least have let him know as a friend that her patient had recovered and taken his departure. He felt aggrieved. Should he call her up now and ask permission to call? His first inclination was to do so, then remembering Clay's sly insinuations of her tender care he grew resentful again and crawled back into his shell. Perhaps she did not want him to call any more. Perhaps she and Clay had it all arranged between them, and that was the cause of the other's subtle mockery. He would take a day or two and think it over. If he was out of the running it was now too late to do anything about it anyway, and if he was not another day or so would make no difference—she might be gladder to see him then.

It was Sunday and he would do no work that day, but it was his custom to go to his desk between eleven and twelve on Sabbath forenoons to look over his mail and get it ready for Monday's dictation. He pursued his way officeward, therefore, opened the door and sat himself down in the quiet room. Five minutes later the telephone bell rang and he got up to answer it, wondering whom the caller might be. It was Doris.

"Knowing your custom of opening your mail on Sundays at about this hour I was in hopes of catching you in your workshop," she began. "And how have you been during these awful days?" He most untruthfully assured her that he had never been better or happier. She seemed pleased to hear it.

SCORES KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Dynamite Creates Havoc in Baltimore Harbor.

Baltimore, Md., March 7.—A barge loaded with dynamite, destined for the Panama canal, exploded in Curtis bay, blowing up the British steamer Alum Chine, Captain Anstrel, and the tug Atlantic. Seventy-five men are reported dead or missing. Thirty-nine bodies have been recovered.

Fifty persons, more or less seriously hurt, were brought to Brown's wharf and Sparrow's Point and hurried to hospitals. The dynamite was being loaded for shipment and there were 10 car loads on the scow being transferred to the Alum Chine. A foreman of stevedores tried to raise a box of the explosive with his balabook. It exploded, tearing him to pieces and shaking the steamer and scow. Everybody on board started to run, but a second explosion followed, setting off most of the dynamite. The captains and crews of both steamer and tug are reported among the missing.

Great lights of glass were broken in the business section and some of the skyscrapers were so badly shaken that the inmates were panic-stricken. Goods were thrown from store shelves and windows broken in Harve de Grace, 16 miles from the scene of the explosion.

State House Rocked. The state house at Annapolis was rocked so violently that Governor Goldsborough believed it was about to fall in, and fled to the corridor outside of his office.

At the Maryland Steel company across the river the workers believed there had been an explosion in the mill and fled from their machines to the street in terror. The United States collier Jason lying in mid-stream, was so badly shaken that her cargo shifted and she was in danger of capsizing. Four men on the Jason were reported killed by the concussion, and it is reported that 25 others were hurt.

The explosion was felt distinctly in Philadelphia and vicinity. The shock was most severe at the League Island navy yard, where officials immediately telephoned to the local weather bureau to know if there had been an earth quake.

Between Farm and City

Yale motorcycles place the advantages of one in reach of the other. Farmers have found it invaluable in many ways--such as when machinery breaks in the midst of harvesting. A trip to town for a repair part would lose the best part of the day if a horse were driven, but it is a spin of only an hour or less by motorcycles.

You would be interested by the way a YALE motorcycle would prove its worth to YOU. Call at this Store for demonstration, or write for illustrated catalog.
